

SAFETY DATA SHEET (SDS) INFORMATION

UltraChek™

Separation Technology, Inc. (STI), an EKF Diagnostics company, supplies UltraChek Reference Controls as quality control material for the UltraCrit™ Hematocrit Measurement Device. These products do not contain hazardous chemicals or carcinogens and Safety Data Sheets (SDS) are not an OSHA requirement for the UltraChek products. [Reference OSHA 29CFR 1900.1200 (b) (6) (ix)]

STI's products are classified as in vitro diagnostics and regulated by the FDA. Accordingly, all applicable precautions are stated on the package insert that accompanies each product.

STI suggests you place a copy of this letter in any place you would ordinarily keep an SDS. This step will document your facility's compliance with OSHA requirements.
